JOSE GARCÉS
Green Beans with Oranges and Dates

"My parents are 'Evangelists,'" Garcés says, "so I find myself adding Latin American ingredients to everything I cook." His take on green bean casserole is a vibrant medley of beans tossed with oranges, dates, and almonds—plus a sprig of his secret ingredient, smoked paprika. "Like almonds, smoked paprika was originally a Spanish ingredient," he explains. "But now we consider it an essential part of our cuisine, too. It adds a rich, smoky finish to every dish I put it on." Garcés is an Iron Chef America winner and chef-owner of Amada in Philadelphia.

EMERIL LAGASSE
Spicy Sausage Dressing

Lagasse's mother cooked her family's Portuguese specialties year-round, but her Thanksgiving dressing—filled with spicy sausage, lots of parsley, and milk-soaked bread—is his favorite. After years of trying to replicate it, he finally asked for the recipe. "It might be the best thing I've ever eaten. I make it all the time," Lagasse says.

Lagasse hosts Emeril's Table on the Hallmark Channel.
(FOR THESE RECIPES, SEE PAGE 200.)

Something to Celebrate!

Turkey usually gets top billing at Thanksgiving, but side dishes can be just as memorable. O asked star chefs to share dishes that honor their heritage—from spicy Portuguese stuffing to Asian-inspired Brussels sprouts—for a very American holiday meal.
